I'm working with different layers and I want to rotate the layers up to a specific angle. How can I rotate my layer (path) around a specific point? Thanks! A: Quickly just to get started, there are several options for what you could do: There are at least two ways to rotate the artwork. The first is to use the Rotation command that lives under the "Transform" panel. For rotating to an angle, you would set the Input Angle to the value you want to rotate the artwork to, then the Input to the "Current Rotation" value. Just a quick warning, you want to make sure that the "Apply" option is set to "Keep Transform" as otherwise the layer will be rotated but the rotation will get lost. The other way is to use the Transform panel and set the "Rotation" property to the value you want to rotate the artwork to. There is also an "Offset" property where you can enter the distance the artwork will be moved in the "x" and "y" directions. If you wanted to use this method, you would select the layer and choose the "Move" item in the "Layer" panel and then set the Offset values in the position control (top right hand corner). There is also a "Scale" property where you can enter a value for both X and Y to make the artwork larger or smaller. Hope this helps you out! LIZ: Hey guys, this is Lizzie. JESSICA: And I'm Jessica.
