These games are played just like how the game theory films describe them: 5 vs. 5: In a 5 vs. 5 game, the first team to get a player has won the match. 5 player teams: In a 5 player team game, one member of the team is picked to be the "barrier". This player is not allowed to leave the map, and neither can the members of his team. The remaining players need to team up to kill this player. The team that kills the barrier first, wins the match. 8 player teams: In an 8 player team game, each of the players are put into a queue and multiple teams (usually 4-8 players) are ranked against each other. The match starts when all players from all teams are together in a big single map with no barriers. What's new:

Image: Deep Silver Since its release in 1997, Space Hulk has long been a fan favourite - the chance to kill mutants and heroic "space marines" has proved far more absorbing than the political machinations of the 2300 years we spend in the service of the Emperor at our controls. Like the old Far Cry, Space Hulk served as an unforgettable playground, challenging players to solve the ebbs and flows of the mutant's defenses while running away from any who might notice. Now, after an extended wait and a plethora of improvements (including this version), Deathwing is available for the Xbox One, PS4, and PC. That means you can be immersed in mutant infested corridors once more, but, in doing so, let's take a look at what is new with this update. Settings Changing some settings is always easy, but this update brings several jumps forward. Firstly, it's possible to select whether or not you want a "keyboard" UI or one with a mouse. Now, those familiar with the keyboard might have done so from the get-go, but those further afield are likely to want to try the mouse. To do so, simply load your old save and change the settings via the character selection screen - you'll notice that the keyboard is selected. That should be enough to ensure that you make use of the spacebar to pick up hotkeys as you advance or retreat during missions. Character customization options have been increased too. You can now change the eyes, skin colour, and weapon loadouts via the character selection screen. Furthermore, you'll notice that characters earn medals based on your performance during missions in the run up to Deathwing's release. As a full 30 day Elder Character, having levelled a number of classes, provided you followed my tutorials on the matter, you should have the profile unlocked and ready to choose from. Perhaps most interestingly, you'll have the chance to choose the colour of your crimson robes. That option may not be as exciting as some of the other tweaks, but it makes for a reminder of what you wanted from this update in the first place. Interface Nothing has changed much in terms of the UI, as that small window has been unavailable since the date the update arrived. The designers' aim was to get rid of the 3D-ness and make things more streamlined. How well the players will embrace that move is to be seen

Perplexing puzzle games are back, with a new twist! The once-successful puzzle game Codewords is back, but with a new twist: Codewords: Puzzles can now go beyond a single grid and expand to a whole board to solve. Take on a series of 100 in-game puzzles in numerous unique boards or a single board - in Rooms Mode you can start each puzzle at will, while in Challenge Mode you must complete every puzzle before you proceed to the next. Choose from 100 unique codewords, each with a number, and create a code that becomes the key to unlocking the next grid on the board. Game Of Nine Taps Pro Playlist My channel!  Game Of Nine Taps Pro  1. I solve this puzzle by drawing 10 squares out of the centre of the nine taps, coloured the correct number of squares to match the nine taps. The number of squares equals the number of taps. As you can see, this is very difficult if not impossible to achieve visually. 2. The next challenge for this game is to remove the squares of the centres when they are put back into the frame on to the original number. I'll be uploading some videos of this later today. 3.
